With such materials, and with such able fe ow laborers in the literary vineyard, we hope to present to the American reader, a weekly journal of great value and un-usual excellence. The parade of mere names will be seduously avoided.

The Mirror will be remarkable we hope, rather for good articles without names, than for poor articles with distinguished names. It will embrace in its scope every department of elegant literature, comprising tales of romance, sketches of society, manners and sentiments, and every day life, piquant essays, domestic and foreign correspondence, literary intelligence, wit and humor, fashion and gossip, poetry, the fine arts, and literary, musical and dramatic criticisms. Its tendency will be cheerful and enlivening as well as improving. It will seek to gratify every refined taste, but never to offend the most fastidious-and it will ever feel its duty to be, to "turn the sunny side of things to human eyes." The work will be published every Saturday, in numbers of sixteen large octavo super-royal pages, with double columns and enclosed in a neat and ornamental cover. It will form at the end of the year, two superb volumes, each of four hundred and sixteen pages, filled with the

> At the present era of our history, the people of the United States have before them matters of stupendous national interest, involving the prosperity, nay, existence of republican institutions. Congress will be asked to admit Texas into the Union-to repeal the tariff and distribution clause-to assume the debts of the States -to adopt some plan of collecting and disbursing the Nation's revenue. Our foreign intercourse especially with Great Britain, will be a source of intense interest. In a short time we must know the political preferences of the democracy in regard to a presidential candidatethe convention of the States will give us the probable result of the national convention. Ma ny of the free and enlightened democratic press have raised the standard of some great defender of their principles. They are so many tributes due virtuous, generous benefactors of the republic. We have unfur'ed our banner, and upon its folds may be read the glorious time-honored names of Calhoun and Woodbury. History reveals their lives without repreach, and their acts, the country's. The national convention, according to democratic usuage, will proclaim the final choice. May it be our favorite-may it be the pure-hearted, honest aud unwavering democrat of the south-but on whose head soever it may fall, that choice will meet our approval, and receive our honest and zea'ous support .--Under no circumstances will our ardor cool, or spirits droop, in favor of the will of the demccratic party.
